Similar romarks might be applied to Hongkong and to some extent to the Far East generally. The old idea that fortunes could be made in a few years in this part of the world has long been exploded, and although every one still looks forward to spending the evening of his days in the old country it is recognised that when once a man comes the bestowment upon him of the three-eyed pea. Mr. Gen. B. Dodwell, one of the defendants, was out to the East in these times he is likely to remain there for the greater portion of his life. With this there comes an increase of married life, and the figures quoted by Mr. Score with respect to the number children in Shanghai now as compared with fifteen years ago show to what an extent this increase has been going on.
